Preface.

The plan of these Outlines of General History has been so adapted that they may be used with any text-books, and much information might be obtained from them alone.

The author has felt the need of just such a work in the school room, and these outlines are the result of his experience in teaching the subject.

I do not claim originality (and who does in history) in anything except the arrangement, and I would be willing to credit all those who so desire with some shares of stock in this feature.

In the tables, Great Men of Centuries, Pseudonyms and Sayings, and others, do not expect to find completeness; but only a guide for more complete work. For elementary work, they are probably full enough.

Especial attention is directed to the arrangement of the questions and answers. Many "Quiz Books" are objectionable because they do not train mind action, but depend upon the memory altogether; and a question may be as different in relation to the proceeding one as a simoom is different from a monsoon. This objection is met (I hope) by grouping the questions under designated headings, and placing them in chronological order. In this manner, one question leads to another one, often on the same subject, and we proceed from the "known to the related unknown," and by means of association review history systematically.

England is treated of more fully because of its historical nearness to us, and the United States is purposely omitted, for the reason that every student of General History is supposed to be well versed in the history of his own country.

68. Hannibal. He was successful for a number of years, but was finally overcome by the odds against him.

69. When the Jugurthine war occurred, (110-109 B. C.) Marius was made consul, and Sulla, a bright but dissolute young man, was general. The general was to obey the consul, and the consul could not serve for a period longer than two years. They both violated these laws, and torn by internal strife, and harassed by the barbarians, Rome entered into a civil war. At first Marius was expelled, and Sulla with his conquering legions captured Rome. Then Marius gathered a force of troops and he came back and took the imperial city, but died (88 B. C.) before Sulla returned from his conquering tour in Asia. Next followed a reign of terror for Sulla murdered 6,000 soldiers of the opposite party. After three years of dreadful rule he resigned suddenly, and died (78 B. C.). (b) Cataline was a dissolute nobleman who secretly attempted (63 B. C.) to overthrow the Roman government by assassinating the consuls. The plot seemed likely to succeed, until Cicero, the orator and lawyer, became acquainted with the facts, when prompt measures were introduced to stop it. Cataline died leading his rebellious citizens and Cicero, for his work, has been hailed as the "Father of His Country."

70. Cæsar, Pompey and Crassus; 60 B. C.

Chapter XXXIII.—Mediaeval History.

I. RACES.

1. The downfall of Rome, 476 A. D.; 1100 A. D.; 1500 A. D.
2. (a) The ostrogoths were a powerful barbaric tribe in the east of Germany. (b) The Visigoths were in Western Germany. They were related to each other. (c) The Burgundians came from the north-east and settled in Central Europe. (d) The Vandals were a devastating tribe of Northern Africa. (e) The Merovingians were a weak Northern Germanic tribe. (f) The Lombards were from the East, and so called because of their long beards. They settled in Lombardy. (g) The Huns, after securing all Europe finally settled (some of them) in Hungary. (h) The Anglo-Saxons were descendants of the Goths, and named from the sections in which they had settled. They settled and named Angle-land or England.

3. While they were carrying destruction with their arms wherever they went, they met the plain, common, humble followers of Christ, whose examples of piety touched the tender hearts of the barbarians; and the countries conquered with the sword, generally, conquered the conquerors with their religion.
4. The word is derived from the Greek, monacho, meaning a monk. It was the practice of the Catholic Church, of having monks assemble in groups or monasteries, for the purpose of spiritual education. By this means alone was the Bible, and all records of Christianity saved and promulgated. It flourished, therefore, because it was deemed a necessity.
5. The barbaric languages which were Romanized or Latinized. Such as the Italian, French and Spanish.
6. Under the reign of Justinian, the Emperor of the East occurred: (1) The adornment of his capital; (2) the writing of the Pandects, Codes and Institutes of Roman Law; (3) and the defeat of the Goths in Italy by his general, Belisarius. While Heraclius was on the throne was fought the battle of Nineveh (627 A. D.) and Persia was overthrown.

II. MOHAMMEDANISM.

7. He was an Arabian camel driver and was born in Mecca in 571 A. D. He called himself God's prophet and founded a new religion.
8. The flight of Mohammed from his place of nativity to Medina in 622 A. D. was called "Hegira."
9. The "Koran," tribute or the sword. Other nations must either accept their doctrines, pay them tribute or be put to death.
10. The Mohammedans had been successful in their world-conquering expedition, and marched northward from Spain. Here they met the Franks under Charles Martel ("The Hammer") in 732 A. D. After a fierce and spirited battle in which 375,000 men were left dead on the field, the Mohammedans or Saracens met their first defeat, and the Pyrenees became the northern boundary of the Saracenic Empire in Europe.

11. The "Omniades" held Spain with their capital at Cordova; the "Abassides" ruled Northern Africa and Arabia from their capital at Bagdad; and the descendants of Ali, son-in-law of Mohammed, controlled Persia, Egypt and Mauretania.
12. At the time of the introduction of Mohammedanism, the other religions were almost lifeless, and the Christian Church, especially, was very weak. This accounts for their wonderful influence. They established schools at Cordova and Bagdad, and as all Europe was buried beneath the flood of ignorance, people from all parts of the world had to resort to these schools for education. They gave us Algebra, Arithmetic, and many other commendable things.

III. CRUSADES, CHIVALRY, ETC.

13. They were those Christians who desired to rescue the Holy Land of Palestine and the Tomb of Christ from the Moslems or Mohammedans. They used the cross as their emblem, hence they were called Croisaders or Crusaders, (i. e. followers of the Cross.)
14. Although the general effect was entirely different from the object in view, yet it was beneficial to Europe.
 1. The minds of Crusaders were enlightened by contact with customs, different from their own.
 2. They introduced, into Europe, sugar, silk and fine wheat from the East.
 3. Principalities, duchies and counties warred with each other after the crusading ceased.
 4. The Church's power increased.
 5. The Crusades brought chivalry.
 6. A rivalry arose between Italian free cities in regard to the Eastern

- trade. 7. Secret societies were fostered and encouraged.
15. Feudalism was that system by means of which knights and lords held their lands on condition of military service to the King, or chief, who granted them, and they in turn held vassals under them upon the same condition.
15. Chivalry was a training of skilled knights from boyhood. At the age of seven years, the boy became a Page and had certain duties to perform. When he was fourteen years old he became a Squire, and at 21 he was knighted if he had stood all the previous tests and performed the strict duties exacted of him.
17. It was usually a strong stone fortress on some high cliff inclosed by massive parapetted walls, encircled by ditches shining with towers.
18. The lands were held by the people at the will of their lords, vassals, fiefs or suzerains upon condition of service to them.
19. The candidate on bended knees took a vow to defend his lord's good name and to be his (lord's) man, to not shun any adventure in any war he might happen to be, and to protect women and all weak persons. He was then stricken on the neck with the flat side of the sword and dubbed a knight.
20. Lists were painted and gilded and hung with gorgeous tapestries. The combatants (knights clad in armor on horseback) appeared at the sound of music, and rushed towards each other with frantic fury. They were sometimes preceded by ladies who led them with golden chains. There were knights and heralds posted at places in the lists to replace broken lances and weapons, and to assist or raise unhorsed knights, and see that order was observed.
21. The effect of chivalry was to cause people to be more polite, to make them respect weakness, and honor women.

IV. RISE OF MODERN NATIONS.

22. (a) King of the Franks from 487-507 A. D. (b) Pepin, the Short, was the son of Charles Martel and King of the Franks. (c) Charlemagne was the son of Pepin, conqueror of Italy and Germany, and Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire from 800-814 A. D.
23. He conquered all that territory from the Baltic to the Adriatic Sea, and from the English channel to the East of Burgundy, and re-established the Holy Roman Empire.—800. At the Treaty of Verdun in 843 A. D. Lothair obtained Italy, Louis held Germany and the Rhine, and Charles the Bold, France. All these were his grand sons.
24. They went to Normandy in France, Russia, Greenland and Iceland.
25. The Merovingian, Carlovingian, Capetian and Valois families.
26. In the reign of Louis XI.—1461-1483.
27. a. Crecy was fought between the English, under Edward III., and the French, under Philip VI., in France in 1346. The French were defeated. b. Henry V. of England defeated an army of French four times as large as his own, at Agincourt in 1415. The French were commanded by Charles VI. c. The English had laid siege to Orleans in 1429, but Joan of Arc, a simple, peasant girl who believed she was inspired of heaven to save her country, appeared at the head of the French army and the English retreated.
28. Under Charles VII., aided by Joan of Arc in 1422.
29. 1. Roman Conquest—79 A. D. 2. Saxon Conquest—about 400 A. D. 3. The Danish Conquest—1016 A. D. 4. Norman Conquest—1066 A. D.
30. a. Ireland was conquered by the barons of Henry II., 1154-1189, but rebelled and defeated the Earl of Essex in 1589, and was again beaten by Ireton, son-in-law of Oliver Cromwell, in 1651. b. Wales was subdued by Edward I. in 1300 A. D. His son, Edward II., attempted to conquer Scotland, but such men as Wallace and Bruce proved too much for him and he was defeated. c. The Crowns were united under the monarch, James VI. of Scotland, who became James I. of England, in 1603.—Union of Parliament later.

31. 1. The war of the barons against King John, in 1215, and the obtainment of the "Great Charter." 2. The war of Parliament against the King, Charles I., led by Oliver Cromwell—1644-48. 3. The rise of the House of Commons from 1640 since. 4. The Granting of the Petition of Right—1628. 4. Bill of Rights—1689.
32. Two ladies, discussing the troubles between the Houses of York and Lancaster, exhibited White and Red Roses, respectively, to exemplify the purity of the one and the beauty of the other. It began in 1455 and lasted for thirty years.
33. 1. Charlemagne. 2. Joan of Arc. 3. Hugh Capet. Louis XI. 5. Richard I. 6. Alcuin. See p. 52.
34. France and England were almost continually at war with each other, while Germany struggled against the Barbarians in order to hold the title of "Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire," established by Charlemagne in 800.
35. Carlovingians, Franconians, Saxons, Hohenstaufens and Hapsburgs. (See outlines for dates.)
36. From 1253 until 1273.
37. It was named from Rudolph's Castle in Switzerland, and was proud, haughty and revengeful.
38. It lasted until 1807. (See Ans. to No. 34.) It was an empty honor, conferred on the weak rulers of Germany, in the middle ages.

39. In 1307, when a little band met and swore that they would have liberty.
40. Morgarten—1315. Sempach—1386. Nafels—1388.
41. Her independence was acknowledged in 1648. The country at first comprised only eight cantons, or districts, but it now has 22 cantons. It became a republic, and such a one that no nation dared to tread upon its rights.
42. William Tell was put in prison and his son was arrested. Gessler, the Austrian governor, told Tell if he would shoot an apple off his son's head, at the distance of 100 paces, he (Gessler) would grant them both liberty. Tell was very skillful with the bow, but he hid an arrow in his vest that he might shoot Gessler, should he hit his boy. Tell hits the apple, but Gessler, discovering the hidden arrow, put him in prison again. One time after this, they were in a boat on a stormy lake, and Tell's chains were unloosed that he might steer the boat, when he jumped out of a rock, hid and shot Gessler, killing him.
43. The monasteries kept alive the lights of learning, because they were peaceful, did acts of devotion, furnished homes for the oppressed, practiced benevolence, and restrained feudalism when it was too much for even the Kings. The gift of Pepin, the Short, made the pope a political prince; the crusades strengthened the papal power; and the belief that the world would come to an end in 1000 A. D. all increased the power of the Papacy.
44. Rienzi, the Roman Patriot.
45. When the Roman Empire was destroyed, it began to crumble, and the strongest cities had to prepare for a struggle for existence against the barbarians.
46. Florence, the birthplace of Amerigo Vespucci; Genoa, the birthplace of Columbus; Venice, built on seventy-two small islands.
47. She was the daughter of a peasant and believed that God had inspired her to save the French. Leaving home, she entered the army and led it to victory against the English. She had the Dauphin crowned King of Rheims, and declared that her mission was ended; but the silly King insisted that she must remain with the army. She was captured by the English, and burned at the stake in 1431 at the age of 20. She foretold, amid the flames, that the English would soon meet with disasters.

48. a. A protestant reformer of Bohemia. b. Emperor of Hungary and Bohemia. c. Emperor of Germany before the Reformation.
49. The inventions of gunpowder, printing and the mariner's compass. (See tables for authors, &c.)
50. They were extremely severe. Heretics were burned at the stake, which was the punishment for severe crimes, and was always administered by almost all religious denominations and rulers.
51. 1. 1453—Close of the "Hundred Years War." 2. Downfall of Constantinople. 3. 1491—Expulsion of the Moors from Spain. 4. 1492—Discovery of America. 5. 1500—As a general date including all these events.
52. Deliverance of France; War of the Roses; Conquest of Granada; Printing of first book by Gutenberg; The Tudor family comes to the throne of England; Vasco DeGama doubles the Cape of Good Hope; Savonarola is burned at the stake; Charles VIII. invaded Italy; and Chivalry becomes obsolete.
53. William Caxton.

Chapter XXXIV.—Modern History.

II. OTHER COUNTRIES THAN ENGLAND.

1. They gave the French a thirst for conquest for which Italy suffered often, and led to acquaintances which resulted in Philip, heir to the Netherlands, marrying Joanna, daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, while Catharine, Joanna's sister, married Arthur of England, and became heir to the British crown, upon the death of Henry, brother of Arthur.

2. He was at first successful, but committed such brutal outrages, and his best general Gaston de Foix having been killed at Ravenna in 1512, he was defeated.
3. Wealth and undisputed power had probably led the church into some abuses, and some men thought and felt that the Popes were not true representatives of Christ.
4. The Diet of the Church at Spires, 1529, declared that no changes from the doctrines and worship would be allowed, and the German princes and cities that protested against this were termed Protestants.
5. Denmark, Sweden and a part of Germany and Switzerland, the Netherlands and England.
6. He was the great grand-son of Charles the Bold of Burgundy.
7. See p. 57.
8. Ignatius Loyola was a Spanish cavalier, who had once been wounded in battle. He led a counter-influence for the Catholic church against Luther by founding the grand order of Jesuits.
9. The Guises were descended from the Dukes of Lorraine. Mary married James V. of Scotland, and her daughter, Mary, married Francis II. of France. Hence they had a wonderful influence, at the Scottish and French courts, against the English. The Duke of Guise defended Metz against Charles V. who had an army of 100,000 men, and he captured Calais. He has been accused of being the chief promoter of the massacre of St. Bartholomew—1572, and he seized Paris itself at one time. Henry, the heir to the French crown, invited him to a conference and had him stabbed to death.

10. William, Prince of Orange, in the Netherlands.
11. In the war for the "Rise of the Dutch Republic," William attempted to unite them all together but failed. The Ten lower provinces were however united to the seven upper ones in 1814.
12. He was murdered in his own house by a hired assassin of Philip II., of Spain in 1584.
13. His grandson, William, who married Mary, daughter of James II., of England, and headed the Revolution of 1688, winning the English crown.
14. His brother, Ferdinand, became emperor of Germany and Duke of Austria; and Philip obtained Spain and the Netherlands, yet they acted in concert.
15. He was the ruler of Turkey and the great Mohammedan leader of Modern Times.
16. Solyman had captured Cypress and alarmed all Europe. The Spanish and Venetians succeeded in defeating the Turks in the battle of Lepanto, 1571. Solyman's death caused a lull in the wars as his immediate successor, Selim, was a weak monarch; but when Mohammed II. had murdered his nineteen brothers in order to gain the throne, he, of course, renewed the war, and at Kerestes, in 1596, 50,000 Christians were slain. They, the Mohammedans, were, however, beaten, and Bohemia and Hungary were relieved from paying them tribute.
17. The crowns of Bohemia and Hungary were resigned to Ferdinand of Styria. The Bohemians revolted against Ferdinand and chose Frederick the Palatine, and son-in-law of James I. of England, as their king. See p. 61.
18. He was the Imperial general and leader of the Catholic forces and was never defeated until he met Gustavus Adolphus. He was assassinated under orders of the emperor for treason,
19. He was the Protestant King of Sweden, who led his troops to victory against the famous Wallenstein at Lutzen in 1632. He died amid the victorious shouts of his soldiers.

20. The Treaty of Westphalia in 1648.

21. 1. It brought the religious wars on the continent to an end; 2. granted religious freedom; 3. recognized the independence of Switzerland; 4. and Holland; 5. and gave Alsace to France; 6. and Pomerania to Sweden. The causes were forgotten.

22. Spain, Portugal, England, France, Holland and Sweden.

23. 1. The Spaniards settled in Mexico, S. A., Cuba, Hayti and the Phillipines; 2. The Portuguese in Brazil and various islands; 3. The English in Virginia, Mass., N. H., Conn., R. I., N. C. and S. C., Georgia and Guiana; 4. The Dutch in New York, Guiana, Java and Spice Islands; 5. The French in Canada, Guiana and La.; 6. The Swedes in Delaware.

24. She was only six years old when Gustavus Adolphus her father was killed. She displayed remarkable ability, but no steadiness of purpose, and became tired of governing, so she resigned in favor of her cousin Charles X., and spent the rest of her life in aimless wandering.

25. Charles XII. of Sweden was a grandson of Charles X. He came to the throne in 1697, at fifteen years of age. His enemies attempted to take advantage of his youth and divide his kingdom, but in two weeks he defeated the King of Denmark. Russia had besieged Narva with 80,000 men, and he went to its relief with only 8,000 Swedes and beat them. Next he crushed Poland, placing Stanislaus Leczinsky on the throne, and driving Augustus the Strong into Saxony. Imagining himself a second Alexander he invaded Russia, but was defeated at Pultowa in 1709, and killed in a siege in Norway before he reached home in 1718.

26. He became joint-king with his demented half-brother, when he was ten years old. At the age of seventeen he siezed the crown for himself—1689. He went to England, Holland and other countries and learned the art of ship-building, and observed everything that could be of any use to his country. He desired an outlet on the Baltic sea, and entered into a coalition with Poland and Denmark, to dismember Sweden. Charles XII. was more than successful against Peter at first, but the Russians learned lessons from his defeats, and finally succeeded in routing the Swedes at Pultowa, and raised Russia from a fourth rate to first rate power. He died in 1725, and was succeeded by his wife, Catherine I.

27. Catherine II. of Russia attempts to secure Poland, but Austria and Prussia interfered and they agreed to divide it into thirds. This was done in 1772. The Poles under Kosciusko struggled fiercely but were beaten by overwhelming odds, and the most disgraceful act ever perpetrated in the annals of history was committed by the greedy trio.
28. Leo X., Gregory XIII. and Pius IX.
29. His grand-father, the elector of Brandenburg was humored by the Emperor, and crowned as King of Prussia. Frederick the Great came to the throne in 1740, and having an inherent genius for war, he entered the "War of the Austrian Succession," and the "Seven Years War"—1756-63, and by so doing he placed Prussia among the leading powers of Europe.
30. In 1740, Maria Theresa became heir to the Austrian throne by the "Pragmatic Sanction" arranged by her father, but other claims caused Prussia, France and Spain to war against Great Britain and Holland. The treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1748 closed the war and left Frederick in possession of Silesia.
31. Henry of Navarre, as Henry IV., was the first Bourbon. Louis XVI. the last one in successive order, was beheaded in 1793. Louis XVIII. "tackled" the throne two or three times, but Napoleon I. interfered with his regal robes, as did Napoleon III. with another Kingdom. The Last Bourbon on the throne was Charles X.—1824–30. The Bourbons like the Stuarts of England, believed in the “Divine Right of Kings” and were obstinate and cruel at times. The Revolution of 1830 placed Louis Phillippe on the throne and since that time no Bourbon has applied for the situation.

32. He had three things to accomplish, viz: to destroy the Huguenots; subdue the nobles; and humble the House of Hapsburg or Austria. Under his regime, Louis XIII. became the “first man in Europe.” though he was only the “second man in France.”
33. He was noted for his false ideas of glory, his independence of ministers and reckless extravagance.
34. Louis XIV. became his own prime minister, and was sole master of France for fifty years.
35. The King of Spain, Charles II., had willed his dominions to the grandson of Louis XIV., who accepted the crown in his (grand-son's) behalf. Other countries feared that the union of two such powerful nations would endanger Europe, so England, Holland and Austria formed a Grand Alliance to prevent it. They espoused the cause of Archduke Charles of Austria, but in the midst of the war, he became Emperor of Germany, so now they feared one as much as the other. The Treaties of Utrecht and Rastadt in 1714 closed the war, after twelve years of fighting by which nothing was gained or lost in principle.
36. See p. 62.
37. She lost Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Hudson's Bay in America, and all she had claimed of the Spanish Netherlands.
38. See p. 67.
39. Jacobins, Cordeliers, Girondists, Royalists and Terrorists.

40. Danton, Marat and Robespierre.
41. Pichegru, Hoche, Jourdan, Moreau and Dumouriez.
42. That period from June 2, 1793 to July 28, 1794.
43. The Queen fled to England, but the little son Louis XVII. died after two years suffering in prison. Romance has pictured him as coming to America.
44. He was born on the island of Corsica in 1769, and attended a military school at Brienne, in France, when he was only ten years old. He was resolute, quarrelsome and gloomy, but proud, a genius and a favorite with his teachers. He entered the army as a lieutenant and first distinguished himself at the siege of Toulon. He married Josephine, widow of Beauharnais, who was executed, and obtained command of the army of Italy in 1796. He was successful in this campaign and afterwards defeated Austria. All Europe soon trembled at his power, for monarchies crumbled and Kings tumbled at his command. Victories succeeded each other, thick and fast, until all Europe met him at Leipsic in 1813, where he was defeated and banished to the island of Elba. He escaped the guards, and in one hundred days from the time of his banishment, was back again, and met the allied armies under Wellington at Waterloo in 1815, but was beaten only because his marshal Grouchy failed to appear on the scene of action. He was again banished to an island—St. Helena—where he died in 1821. Had he not made some flagrant mistakes, the map of Europe might today present different boundary lines to our vision.
45. He was a nephew of Napoleon I. and by means of a revolution, he became the chief officer of the second republic, which being changed to a monarchy made him King—1848–71.
46. Alexander I., Czar of Russia, proposed to the five great powers of Russia, Austria, Prussia, France and Great Britain that they “Remain united in true brotherly love; govern their subjects as parents; and maintain religion, peace and justice." This was nice, but a spirit of Liberalism as opposed to Absolutism, under despotic monarchs, arose and led to the revolutions of 1848.

47. It occurred in 1823 and lasted until 1830. The Greeks became independent of Turkey, and a Prince of Denmark was placed on the throne.
48. 1. The Italians rebel against Austria. 2. The Hungarians led by Kossuth revolt. 3. The Duchies of Schleswig and Holstein rebel against Denmark. 4. The Revolution in France. 5. The Chartist in England. 6. The Revolution in Germany.
49. a. The war of Austria, with France, Russia, Saxony, Sweden and Poland as allies against Prussia to recover Silesia. England alone aided Prussia.—1756–1763. b. It was Prussia and Italy against Austria, this time, and Austria was defeated and shut out of the German Empire.—1866. c. The war of Prussia and other German states against France in 1870–1871, in which France was defeated, and the King of Prussia became Emperor of Germany.
50. France desired to perpetuate German divisions, and Napoleon III. imagined himself a second Bona-parte, and the French shouted "on to Berlin." The Battles of Weissenburg, Worth, Courcelles, Thionville and Gravelotte were all German victories, and Napoleon surrendered 80,000 men at Sedan, and his general, Marshal Bazaine, 180,000 at Metz. Thus France, which held Europe in awe, under one Napoleon for 197 months, lay at the mercy of one nation under another Napoleon, in seven months.
51. 1. The Pope ceases to be a temporal prince, because the states of the Church were added to Italy.—1878. 2. Turkey grants religious toleration in 1878. 3. Wilhelmina, the child queen, succeeds her father William III. as ruler of the Netherlands.—1890.

4. *Alexander II. of Russia is assassinated in 1881.
5. The Edict of 1890 against the Jews.
6. The Famine of 1890-92.
7. Japan becomes a Constitutional Monarchy.—1889.
8. China and Japan war with each other.—1895.
9. The Russo-Turkish war of 1878.
10. The Graeco-Turkish War of 1897.
11. Italian and Abyssinian affairs.—1897.
12. Rebellion of Cuba and Philippines.—1897-1898.
13. War between United States and Spain.—1898.
14. Death of Hon. W. E. Gladstone.—1898.
15. European intervention in the Orient.—1898.
16. Dewey's victory at Manila.—1898.

II. ENGLAND.

52. The wars with Francis I. and Charles V. The breach with the Catholic Church, and domestic troubles.
53. See p. 60.
54. He was full of whims, obstinate and extremely cruel and ungenerous.
55. Cardinal Wolsley, his prime minister, was authorized to procure a divorce for him from Catharine—No. 1—so he could marry Anne Boleyn, but the King, suspecting his fidelity, because the matter was delayed, had him arrested for treason. He died while on his way to prison, broken-hearted.
56. Edward VI. in 1547.
57. The Duke of Somerset became regent for Edward VI., who was only ten years old. The Duke of Northumberland an arch-enemy to Somerset persuaded the King to have him executed and set aside his half-sisters, Mary and Elizabeth, and let his cousin receive the crown.
58. This cousin, see 57, to the Duke was Lady Jane Grey, a beautiful and accomplished girl, who was proclaimed Queen against her wishes, and she and Lord Dudley, her husband were imprisoned and executed for treason.

*The same year Garfield was assassinated.

59. She was the daughter of Henry VIII. and Catharine of Aragon, and married her cousin, Philip II. of Spain.
60. 1. The defeat of the Invincible Armada—1588. 2. The Independence of Holland. 3. Re-establishment of Protestantism. 4. Increase of Commerce. 5. Her numerous Favorites. 6. The "Augustan Age" of Literature for the English. 7. Drake sails around the Globe. 8. Hawkins traces the coast of Guinea. 9. Formation of the East India Company. 10. Colonization attempted by Raleigh in Va.
61. He was one of Queen Elizabeth's favorites, and made the first attempt to colonize Virginia. He introduced smoking into England, and potatoes into Ireland. He seems to have incurred the displeasure of the Sovereign, and was imprisoned for thirteen years, during which time he wrote a "History of the World." King James I. released him and sent him to S. A. for gold, but Raleigh found none, so he was vexed, and had him beheaded.
62. It was weak and effeminate. He courted favors of Spain, refused to help his son-in-law, the Elector-Palatine of Germany, when England clamored for war, and Great Britain for a period ceased to be the leading nation on the continent.
63. This was said of James I. of England.
64. Sully, the great French statesman.
65. The King attempted to establish absolutism as it was in France, and in 1628 Parliament wrested from him the Petition of Right, which curtailed the sovereign's power. Charles disregarded all his promises and for eleven years ruled like Louis XI. No parliament had been convoked, and when the Scotch invaded England the King had to succumb and call a parliament. This was his "Waterloo," for the parliament brought his famous advisers to the block, and even the proud Charles himself mounted the scaffold in 1649.

66. [a.] Hampden was the first parliamentary general and a cousin to Oliver Cromwell. [b.] Stafford and Laud were advisers of Charles I., and were executed by parliament for their cruel punishments.
67. The adherents of the King's cause were called cavaliers, and those who advocated the cause of Parliament were called Roundheads.
68. Four years—1642–48.
69. He was beheaded in 1649, as a result of his defeat by parliament.
70. Oliver Cromwell who was styled the Protectorate of the Commonwealth.
71. He belonged to that sturdy independent party of the Puritans or Roundheads, and trained his army after his own plan. Besides training his "Ironsides," he organized parliament in 1653. He had beaten the King's forces, and made himself master of England. His reign caused England to be respected and honored abroad, but it was not popular at home. He died in 1659 on the anniversary of his famous battles of Dunbar and Worcester.
72. [a.] The Parliament which Charles I. called together, sat for thirteen years—1640–53, and was really not dissolved for twenty years, 1660. [b.] The Parliament which Charles I. called in order to get "ship-money." It met April 13, 1640, and only sat two days, being dissolved by the King.
73. It occurred in 1660 when Richard, the son of Oliver Cromwell resigned the Protectorate, and General Monk of Scotland marched to London, and under his protection the "Long Parliament," discharged by Cromwell, met and issued writs of election for a new one, and dissolved itself. The new parliament met and proclaimed Charles II. King.
74. Some of the Catholics being much persecuted under James I.'s reign, headed by Guy Fawkes, hid thirty-six barrels of gunpowder beneath fagots of firewood, and it was supposed that they intended to blow up parliament. A discovery was made in time to avert the calamity.—1605.

75. a. Royalists and Parliamentarians; b. Tories and Whigs; Conservatives and Liberals.
76. It was translated in 1611 in the reign of James I.
77. *Upon the death of James II., 1688, his son, James III., desired the crown and was styled the "Old Pretender," and this son's son—Charles III.—was termed "Young Pretender."
78. Because of the fact that the "Revolution of 1688-9" brought William of Orange, who had married Mary, a daughter of James II. to the throne. She was older than young James and they changed the law of succession so it would put a Protestant on the throne. In 1745, the "Young Pretender" was defeated at Culloden Moor, and the Stuarts were never heard of again.
79. After the French and Indian War in 1763, the English troops were stationed in America to protect Canada from again falling into the hands of the French. These troops were to be supported by the Americans and added to this was the great taxation placed upon the colonies by the mother country. The people south of Canada, under the leadership of Washington, assisted by the French, gained their independence, and became United States of America. The Treaty at Paris of 1783 closed the war and England acknowledged the country to be free.
80. His brother William IV—1830-37.
81. †In 1884, Czar Nicholas of Russia attempted to capture some Turkish territory on the pretext of aiding the Greek Christians to obtain certain holy places in Jerusalem. England and France became allies of Turkey, and laid siege to Sebastopol in the Crimea. In the battles of Balaklava, and Inkerman, they worsted the Russians so much that they begged for peace, relinquishing all the territory conquered on the Danube.—1856. The East India Company began to settle India in 1612.

82. The native soldiers in the English service in India revolted because their cartridges were greased, as this was an insult to their religion. The massacres of Delhi, Cawnpore and Lucknow followed. The English succeeded in quelling the mutiny in 1859, and the East India Company turned the affairs of government over to the Queen, who in 1876 took the title of "Empress of India."
83. He was born in 1738, and was made Governor General of India. To meet the expenses of a war carried on against Hyder Ali, a Mohammedan warrior, in 1780, he expelled a rich native King of Benares from his dominion and confiscated his revenues. He afterwards resigned his office; was tried on the charge of malfeasance in office; acquitted at the trial; and granted a pension of $20,000 per year. He died in 1818.
84. The famous orator Edmund Burke.
85. It was colonized by English convicts in 1788 at Sydney. Gold was discovered in 1851, and immigration poured in rapidly until there were soon eight colonies all subject to England. Australia and the neighboring islands of New Zealand, Tasmania and the Fijis have all acknowledged Queen Victoria as their sovereign. They are now 3,388,000 square miles in extent and have a population of 3,500,000 souls.
